HARRIMAN INSPECTS ROAD ACROSS GREAT SALT LAKE

Railway Magnates View One of the Greatest Engineering Feats of the Age.

Officials of the System Delighted With What Has Been Accomplished on the Lucin Cutoff.

Herald yesterday that regular trains would be running over the Ogden-Lucin cut-off by Jan. 1.

The inspection by prominent railroad officials at the formal opening + yesterday convinced them, as near as can be learned, that the cut-off + is assured of success, and that it is one of the greatest engineering undertakings in the world. In two places, where quagmires were encountered, there were still/sags in the track, although not noticeable to the casual observer. According to Chief Engineer William Hood, 400 cars, + each carrying 100 tons of rock, are being hauled out and dumped into the settling stops.

Although all the Southern Pacific officials are reticent as to the cost of the cut-off, it was learned that about $5.000,000 has already been expended and that as much again, or even as much, altogether, as $14,000,000, may have to be expended to do all the work necessary for a thoroughly solid, safe and complete roadbed. That such a roadbed will be obtained is believed.

Just before his train pulled out from Takeside for San Francisco. President Harriman announced to The Herald that regular trains would be running over the new line by Jan. 1.

"Will you make a statement representing your views, at the close of the trip?" he was asked.

The health of the national guardsmen is uniformly good. While a little short of overcoats, warm quarters have been provided and the men are comfortable. Today the boys of companies A and D had their first warm meal since leaving home. Their supper consisted of beans, crackers and coffee. There is a vigorous demand for "Well," he replied, "we have seen the important part of the work, of which 105 miles out of 215 are completed. This 315 miles takes the place of 365 miles, and is all entirely new road. In this work we have reduced grades and have taken out curvature representing nearly eleven complete circles.

"Trains will be running regularly hout Jam. I. There will be no new schedules and consequently no reduction in time until spring, but the trains will be able to run with greater regularity.

This has been a day of satisfaction."

The trip was made yesterday by about 290 persons, including the railroad officials, leading citizens of Ogden, newspaper men and a few other invited guests.
